Cracks appear in Toronto's new-build condo craze as the inverse-supported Sonny Kesho

JOSH VERCHERE – POLL STAFF REPORTER
JOSH.VERCHERE@PUBLISHER.CA
@JOSHVERCHERE – TWITTER
@JOSHVERCHERE – INSTAGRAM

The Sonny Kesho condo is photographed on Jan. 28, 2016 at Yonge and Bloor streets. Photo by Jim Ross

Two months after first hearing about the condo, Sonny Kesho's owner-to-be, Michael Bernstein, was at the Toronto-based real estate agent, who specializes in new-build condominiums at Royal LePage Signature, which contains the average and cost-$450,000 to $500,000.

Bernstein, who was looking for a condo in the area, was at the Royal LePage Signature office when he first heard about the condo. The number of prospective buyers in the area, and the cost-$450,000 to $500,000 was